Allen is a corporate attorney assisting clients with matters relating to corporate and technology law, finance and private securities, negotiation of contracts concerning solar energy projects, corporate and partnership tax, executive and other non-qualified compensation, and wills, trusts and estate law. He is also involved with policy matters related to renewable energy and sustainability initiatives and assists clients with regard to renewable energy projects and the structuring of philanthropic financing concerning renewable energy projects for non-profit organizations.

Prior to joining Moye White, Allen was a Partner at a boutique corporate firm and a southeastern regional firm, both based in Atlanta, Georgia. Before that, he was vice president and general counsel for a technology company in Atlanta, Georgia.

Allen is AV® Peer Review Rated in the Martindale-Hubbell® Law Directory and was selected as the Solar Advocate of the Year (2020) by the Georgia Solar Association.

Allen lives in Atlanta with his wife Lila Bradley. He enjoys canoeing and sea kayaking; for example, he explored Georgia's barrier islands in a sea kayaking trip that was 150 miles down Georgia's coast. He is also proud to have been a canoe guide in Canada.
