

ATTORNEY

J. David
Arkell

David's area of practice is construction law, and particularly arbitration and mediation of construction disputes. David has practiced law for more than 40 years and has regularly dealt with disputes regarding delays, differing site conditions, damages, inefficiency, contract interpretation and breach, surety and insurance issues, construction and design defects, mechanics' liens and bond claims, and other issues.

David is a sole arbitrator, chairman, and panel member in construction disputes involving delays, scheduling, inefficiencies and loss of productivity, changes, unforeseen conditions, construction and design defects, termination, damages, contract interpretation, and many other factual and legal issues arising from construction disputes. Size of disputes arbitrated ranges from several tens of thousands to tens of millions of dollars.

David has mediated and arbitrated a multitude of disputes throughout the Rocky Mountain region in cases involving stakes from the mid five figures to the high seven figures. He is highly trained in alternative dispute resolution, and written and spoken on the topic (and many other construction-law topics) to bar associations, trade groups, legal educational organizations, and in other seminars for clients, construction professionals, and other groups. David is a member of the American Arbitration Association's regular panel of arbitrators and its national panel for large and complex cases and is on the AAA's Colorado Mediation Panel. He also accepts arbitration and mediation cases as a "private" ADR neutral.
