

ATTORNEY

Carrie A. Rodgers

Carrie has spent 30 years as a construction lawyer and is now using that experience to also serve as a mediator or arbitrator for construction and commercial disputes. Carrie's broad knowledge of construction helps her be a problem solver for her clients or effective mediator/arbitrator for non-clients.

Whether the claim involves payment issues, delay, lien and bond issues, contract interpretation or defect issues, Carrie has the background and technical knowledge to move parties to a resolution. Carrie often lectures on construction issues including updates on construction law, mechanics' liens and bond claims, ADR issues and construction defect law. She is a co-author of the Mechanics' Lien, Colorado Bond and Miller Act Remedies handbook.

Carrie is highly trained in alternative dispute resolution, and has spoken on the topic at the Statewide ADR Conference. As an arbitrator or mediator, Carrie believes in solid preparation and efficient time management to be a valuable ADR neutral.

Carrie is a member of the American Arbitration Association Construction panel. Additionally, she was selected as one of the Top 50 Women Attorneys in Colorado and one of the Top 5 Construction Lawyers, awarded the Attorney of the Year in 2014 and 2017 by American Subcontractors Association in Colorado, six years as the Barrister's Best Construction Defect Lawyer and a Super Lawyer in Construction Litigation for several years.
